1. Introduction

The True Consequences of a Criminal Conviction

The impact of a criminal conviction is greater than a number of days in prison or a number of dollars fined. Hundreds of federal, state, and local laws impose additional consequences on people convicted of crimes, many of which remain in effect far beyond any judicially-imposed sentence. Unlike incarceration and fines, however, these additional consequences are frequently unknown (at the time of the criminal prosecution) to attorneys, judges, and the individuals whose lives they profoundly affect.

The goal of this publication is to provide information about how a criminal conviction affects the lives of an accused person. The publication summarizes consequences that arise under Wisconsin law and federal law, yet are not included in the sentence imposed by a judge in a criminal case. The scope of these consequences demonstrates the major impacts on the affected individuals, and indirectly, upon their communities.

Five Critical Questions for Assessing Consequences

Some of the consequences mentioned in this publication—such as the loss of a public benefit—can have an immediate impact on accused persons and their families. Other consequences, however, may be impossible to identify as issues before a criminal case reaches disposition. For instance, a person charged with a crime may not be aware that he or she will one day aspire to enter a profession for which being convicted of that crime is disqualifying.

Five questions can help individuals and their attorneys identify the consequences most likely to impact their decision-making process as a case moves toward disposition.¹ This publication is loosely organized around these questions, which are designed to be asked of people accused of criminal offenses:

1. How are you employed?

In many professions, certain charges or convictions can result in losing a license or certificate necessary to work. Asking this question can help identify whether an individual works in a field likely to track and care about criminal activity. Students can be asked about their fields of study and their plans after finishing school.

2. Do you receive any public benefits?

Eligibility for many public benefits can be lost upon conviction for certain crimes. Asking this question can identify whether individuals are at risk of losing critical support, either for themselves or for their families.

¹ These five questions are modified versions of those suggested by Gabriel J. Chin in Making Padilla Practical: Defense Counsel and Collateral Consequences at Guilty Plea, 54 How. L. J. 675, 690 (2011).

3. What is your family situation?

Some types of convictions can impair an individual's ability to be a part of his or her family, especially when children are involved. Asking about family can identify whether family relationships are a concern.

4. Do you own, or will you want to own, any firearms?

Any felony conviction or a misdemeanor conviction involving domestic violence can leave an individual permanently unable to possess a firearm. Asking this question can both determine whether firearm ownership is a concern and warn against future charges for unlawful possession of a weapon.

5. Where were you born?

Non-citizens charged with crimes are often at risk of either being deported or being deemed inadmissible (thus prohibiting future entry into the United States). Asking this question can determine whether immigration status is a necessary concern. Asking about place of birth is a good starting point to determine citizenship because some clients may not be sure of citizenship or immigration status.

The Impact of Federal Law

Federal law imposes numerous consequences of conviction beyond those created by Wisconsin statutes and regulations, but is generally beyond the scope of this publication. A few broadly applicable federal statutes and regulations have been included for purposes of making this publication more useful to the general public and legal community.

For additional information about federal consequences, the American Bar Association has assembled an excellent public website.²

Limitations of this Publication

This publication describes consequences arising under the 2011 Wisconsin statutes and electronically-searchable Wisconsin regulations. Due to the volume of material covered, it is necessarily incomplete, and it does not address all the statutes and regulations that impose civil consequences.³

The internal policies established by individual state and local agencies are also beyond the scope of this publication. Those policies can, however, have a profound impact on the consequences of a conviction. Local public housing authorities, for example, may have widely different positions on how a conviction impacts eligibility.

³ The American Bar Association website, abacollateralconsequences.org, includes a database of collateral consequences contained in Wisconsin statutes and administrative rules.

Sparse information regarding enforcement is another major limitation. Every effort has been made to note instances in which statutory language indicates that a particular penalty or sanction is required. In many cases, however, a criminal conviction “may” prevent someone from obtaining a particular license, certification, or benefit. How individual agencies exercise that discretion is difficult to ascertain. In some cases, what appears to be discretionary language could be enforced in a way that effectively renders a consequence mandatory (and enforcement practices may change, even without a change in the applicable statutory language).

In sum, this publication is intended only as a guide to be used in identifying issues. It is not a substitute for legal advice, and people with specific issues related to their own cases or circumstances should talk to an attorney.

2. Why Criminal Records Matter

Widespread Availability of Criminal History

Criminal history records are more widely available now than ever before. Wisconsin is an open records state, meaning that the custodians of criminal justice records may allow any person to inspect those records except under limited circumstances. Wis. Stat. § 19.35(1). The general public can search Wisconsin criminal court records instantaneously and at minimal expense through the Wisconsin Access to the Public Records of the Consolidated Court Automation Program (CCAP) website, without having to provide a verifiable reason for the search. CCAP provides a searchable database for adult court records. The general public can access law enforcement reports by phone, mail, by fax, or in-person through requests to the police department.

Juvenile records are confidential under Wis. Stat. § 938.396 and will not be disclosed to the general public. If a juvenile record request is submitted, the Crime Investigation Bureau may process the request to ensure that there was no waiver of the juvenile into adult court, thereby creating an adult record. Unless allowed by statute, no juvenile information will be returned. In Wisconsin, persons 17 years of age are treated as adults for the purposes of investigating or prosecuting any violations of state or federal criminal law, any civil law, or municipal ordinance.

Widespread record availability has profoundly impacted individuals' ability to move beyond an arrest or criminal conviction. Any potential employer, landlord, creditor, or government program administrator can check criminal court records at any time; therefore any prior conviction (or criminal charge, even if ultimately dismissed) becomes an easily detectable and a frequently permanent blemish upon an individual. Therefore, many individuals may seek to have their records expunged. Adult and juvenile records may be expunged under certain circumstances as explained below.

Limited Sealing of Criminal Records

Criminal records can only be sealed under limited circumstances. Under Wis. Stat. § 19.36, arrest and criminal records other than those of convictions can typically be sealed if they are one of the following:

- Records pertaining to official actions involving a criminal offense that was not charged, was completely dismissed, or in which the person was acquitted; or
- Employee personnel records; or
- Records of an individual holding a local public office of a state public office.

Furthermore, for special dispositions under Wis. Stat. § 973.015 (expungement), convictions records may be sealed if all of the following apply:

- The person is under the age of 25 at the time of the commission of an offense for which the maximum period of imprisonment is 6 years or less;
- The court determines the person will benefit and society will not be harmed by this disposition; and

- The person has successfully completed the sentence (or term of probation) and has not been convicted of a subsequent offense and, if on probation, the probation has not been revoked.

This expungement provision does not apply to information maintained by the Department of Transportation regarding a conviction required to be included in a record kept under Wis. Stat. § 343.23(2)(a).

A person whose biological sample has been collected following a felony arrest and has been included in the data bank may request removal of his or her biological samples from the database on the grounds that his or her conviction or adjudication has been reversed, set aside, or vacated. Wis. Stat. § 165.77(4).

Instructions for sealing criminal records, as well as the documents necessary for doing so can be found on the Wisconsin Department of Justice website.⁴

Juvenile Criminal Records

The Department of Corrections shall keep a complete record on each juvenile under its supervision. Wis. Stat. § 938.54. Law enforcement agency records of juveniles may not be open to inspection or their contents disclosed except under certain circumstances⁵ or under certain discovery circumstances (Wis. Stat. § 938.293) or by order of the court. Wis. Stat. § 938.396(1)(a).

Most juvenile court records can be expunged if statutory eligibility criteria are satisfied. Wis. Stat. § 938.355(4m):

- A juvenile who has been adjudged delinquent may, on attaining 17 years of age, petition the court to expunge the court's record of the juvenile's adjudication.
 - The court may expunge the record if the court determines that the juvenile has satisfactorily complied with the conditions of his or her dispositional order and that the juvenile will benefit from, and society will not be harmed by, the expungement.

Juvenile records cannot be expunged for the following:

- A person who is currently under Juvenile Court jurisdiction/supervision, even though he/she has reached age 17.
- A person who has been adjudicated as an aggravated juvenile offender or a violent juvenile offender.
- A person who has been adjudicated for an offense that would constitute a crime of violence under Wis. Stat. Chapter 940.

3. Employment

Appendix I contains a list of individual professions for which a criminal conviction (or in some cases a criminal charge) can be either disqualifying or potentially disqualifying under Wisconsin statutes and regulations. The information in this chapter is broadly applicable to Wisconsin employers and employees.

Critical Employment Areas

- Government Licenses, Certificates, Registrations, and Contracts
 - As a general rule, if a job requires any type of government-issued license, certificate, registration, or contract, a criminal conviction could have adverse employment consequences.

- Vulnerable People and Positions of Trust
 - As a general rule, the greater the extent to which a job involves working with vulnerable populations (i.e. students, the mentally ill, prisoners, etc.), the greater the extent to which a criminal conviction may curtail employment possibilities.
 - Also as a general rule, the greater the extent to which a job involves a position of trust or responsibility (i.e. financial responsibility, responsibility for the wellbeing of another, etc.), the greater the extent to which a criminal conviction may curtail employment possibilities.

Guilty and No Contest Pleas

When evaluating a criminal offense, the entities that regulate most of the professions listed in Appendix I treat a guilty plea or a plea of no contest the same way that they treat a conviction following trial by any court of competent jurisdiction.

The Effect of Out-of-State and Federal Convictions

Many of the statutes regulating professions listed in Appendix I specify that out-of-state or federal convictions count against an applicant or licensee in the same way as a Wisconsin conviction; however, many others do not specifically include these convictions.

States differ in their classifications of crimes and disqualifying convictions. Some Wisconsin penalty statutes apply only to persons convicted of a felony in this state. However, some also specify that the penalty applies to persons convicted of a crime elsewhere that would be a felony if committed in this state. See Wis. Stat. § 941.29 (felon in possession of firearm).

To determine whether a person has been "convicted of a crime elsewhere that would be a felony if committed in this state," the courts must consider the underlying conduct of the out-of-state conviction, not merely the statute that was violated."⁷

⁷ State v. Campbell, 2002 WI App 20, 250 Wis. 2d 238, 642 N.W.2d 230.

The Effect of Internal Regulations and Policies

This publication does not include all of the internal regulations and policies followed by individual governmental authorities or agencies. Therefore, despite the absence of a mandatory disqualification listed in Appendix I, the possibility remains that an individual employed in a regulated profession may be subject to an adverse employment action if convicted of a crime.

The Effect of Federal Law

The impact of federal law is beyond the scope of this publication. Nevertheless, federal restrictions on some broadly applicable professions, such as military service, have been included in the list of occupations in Appendix I.

Nearly all jobs working for the federal government are subject to criminal history checks.⁸ The extent to which a criminal record will prevent employment varies from job to job. Most jobs requiring federal licensure also have restrictions on persons with various types of criminal history. Federally regulated occupations with such restrictions include but are not limited to the following:

- Federal law enforcement.
- Child care.
- Transportation industries (air, road, rail, or sea).
- Commodity dealers.
- Broadcast licensing.
- Firearms-related professions (employment that involves use of a firearms, sale or transportation of firearms, etc.).
- Farm labor contractors.
- Financial institutions (banks, brokers, dealers, investment advisers, etc.).

The degree to which a person's criminal history will preclude employment frequently depends on the nature of the individual job and applicant. For additional information, see, produced by the American Bar Association and Public Defender Service of the District of Columbia.⁹

Discrimination Based on Criminal Record

Under many circumstances, a criminal offense cannot serve as the sole basis for the state denying an employment opportunity. According to Wisconsin's Fair Employment law, Wis. Stat. § 111.321, the general rule is that no employer, labor organization, employment agency, licensing agency, or other person may engage in any act of employment discrimination as specified against any individual on the basis of arrest record or conviction record. However, an important limitation of this rule is that an employer or licensing board may take into account a criminal record the circumstances of which are substantially related “to the particular job or licensed activity” in question.¹⁰

¹⁰ See also Wis. Stat. §§ 111.335(1)(b) (arrest record, if a criminal charge related to the arrest is pending) & (c) (conviction record).

4. Public Benefits Programs

Public Housing

The federal government has established several subsidized-housing programs that are administered by local Public Housing Authorities (PHAs). Individual PHAs have great discretion regarding what types of criminal records they will accept in the personal histories of their tenants. Federal law, however, imposes several broadly applicable restrictions on whom PHAs can admit or retain as residents.¹¹

Many of the restrictions below apply to “any household member,” thus creating a situation in which the conduct of one person can result in a loss of housing for an entire family. Additionally, many restrictions are based on the PHA’s evaluation of conduct alone and do not require a conviction in order to prohibit or terminate housing.

- PHAs must prohibit admission if any of the following circumstances apply:
 - The PHA determines that any household member is currently engaged in illegal use of a drug.
 - The PHA determines that a household member’s illegal drug use or pattern of illegal drug use may threaten the health, safety, or right to peaceful enjoyment of the premises by other residents.
 - Any household member has ever been convicted of drug-related criminal activity for the manufacture or production of methamphetamine on the premises of federally-assisted housing.
 - Any household member is subject to a lifetime registration requirement under a state sex offender registration program.

- PHAs may prohibit admission if any household member is currently engaged in or has engaged in any of the following activities, during a reasonable time before the admission:
 - Drug-related criminal activity.
 - Violent criminal activity.
 - Other criminal activity that may threaten the health, safety, or right to peaceful enjoyment of the premises by other residents or persons residing in the immediate vicinity.

- PHAs must terminate assistance if they determine that any member of the household has ever been convicted of producing methamphetamine on the premises of federally-assisted housing.

- PHAs may terminate assistance if they make any of the following determinations:
 - Any household member is currently engaged in any illegal use of a drug.
 - A pattern of illegal use of a drug by any household member interferes with the health, safety, or right to peaceful enjoyment of the premises by other residents.
 - Any household member has engaged in violent criminal activity.

Food Stamps

- A person shall be temporarily disqualified from receiving food stamps for the first offense of the following:
 - Obtaining, or aiding another in obtaining, food stamp benefits to which the person is not entitled.
 - Trading a controlled substance for food stamps.
- A person shall be permanently disqualified from receiving food stamps for the following:
 - A second offense of obtaining, or aiding another in obtaining, food stamp benefits to which the person is not entitled.

 - An offense of trading firearms, ammunition, or explosives for food stamps.
- A person who fraudulently misstates or misrepresents his or her identity or place of residence for the purpose of receiving multiple benefits simultaneously under the food stamp program shall be suspended for a period of 10 years.
- A food stamp applicant previously convicted of a felony that had as an element possession, use, or distribution of a controlled substance in any state or federal court is required to submit to a test for use of a controlled substance as a condition of eligibility.
 - If the test results are positive, the department may not consider the needs of the individual in determining the household's eligibility for the food stamp program.
- A fugitive felon or person who is violating a condition of probation, extended supervision, or parole imposed by a state or federal court is not eligible for the food stamp program during the month of the violation.
- This list of food stamp eligibility provisions is not comprehensive: for complete information, see Wis. Stat. § 49.79.

Federal Student Loan Eligibility

- A student convicted under any federal or state law of any offense involving the possession or sale of a controlled substance, for conduct that occurred during a period of enrollment for which the student was receiving federal student assistance, shall not be eligible to receive any grant, loan, or work assistance under either subchapter IV of chapter 28 of title 20, or part C of subchapter I of chapter 34 of title 42, from the date of that conviction for the period of time specified below. 20 U.S.C. § 1091(r).
 - Possession of a Controlled Substance
 - First Offense: One Year.
 - Second Offense: Two Years.
 - Third Offense: Indefinite.
 - Sale of a Controlled Substance
 - First Offense: Two Years.
 - Second Offense: Indefinite.
- A student whose eligibility has been suspended may resume eligibility before the end of the ineligibility period if certain statutorily specified conditions are met. 20 U.S.C. § 1091(r)(2).

- Pell Grants shall not be awarded to individuals who are in prison for a sex offense or who are subject to involuntary civil as sex offenders. 20 U.S.C. § 1070a(b)(6).

Worker's Compensation Benefits

- An employee is ineligible for worker's compensation benefits if his or her employment has been suspended or terminated due to the employee's alleged commission of a crime, if the circumstances are substantially related to that employment and the employee has been convicted of that crime. Wis. Stat. § 102.43(9)(b).

Wisconsin Works Program – §§ 49.148(4), 49.141(7)(c)

- A person shall be suspended from participating in Wisconsin Works for a period of 10 years beginning on the date of conviction if the person is convicted in a federal or state court for the following conduct:
 - Knowingly and willfully making or causing to be made any false statement or representation of a material fact in any application for purposes of simultaneously receiving assistance from this state and at least one other state.
- For additional information, see Wis. Stat. § 49.141(7)(c).
- A person convicted in any state or federal court of a felony that had as an element possession, use, or distribution of a controlled substance shall be required to submit to a test for use of a controlled substance as a condition of eligibility for the Wisconsin works program.
 - If the test results are positive, the Wisconsin works agency shall decrease the pre-sanction benefit amount for that participant pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 49.148(4).

Veterans Benefits

Veterans are eligible for a variety of benefits under both state and federal law. As illustrated by the examples below, both state and federal benefits can be jeopardized by a criminal conviction.

- If a veteran has been convicted of delinquency of child support or maintenance payments or owes past support, medical expenses, or birth expenses, the veteran is ineligible for the Wisconsin Veteran housing loan program. Wis. Stat. § 45.33(2).
- A person is ineligible for admission to a state-operated veteran's home if the person has been convicted of any felony or of a crime involving moral turpitude. Wis. Stat. § 45.41(2)(b).
 - If a person falling under this section has produced sufficient evidence of subsequent good conduct and reformation of character as to be

- satisfactory to the department, the person may be admitted to a veteran's home.
- No person shall be eligible for residence in an armed forces retirement home if he or she has been convicted of a felony or is not free of drug, alcohol, or psychiatric problems. 24 U.S.C. § 412(b).
 - All veteran's benefits are forfeited if evidence satisfactory to the Secretary shows a veteran to be guilty of mutiny, treason, sabotage, or rendering assistance to an enemy of the United States or its allies, or if convicted of various offenses under federal or military law. 38 U.S.C. § 6104, 38 U.S.C. § 6105.
 - Similar offenses, including spying, result in forfeiture of National Service Life Insurance, Service-members' Group Life Insurance, and Veterans' Group Life Insurance. 38 U.S.C. § 1911, 38 U.S.C. § 1973.

Social Security

- Old-age and survivors insurance benefit payments will not, subject to various exceptions, be paid for any month in which a person is subject to any legal status listed below:¹²
 - Confined in a jail, prison, or other penal institution for conviction of a criminal offense.
 - Confined by court order in an institution at public expense in connection with a verdict of guilty by reason of insanity, a finding of incompetence to stand trial, or a similar verdict or finding.
 - Confined by court order in an institution immediately following completion of confinement for a criminal offense, an element of which is sexual activity, and pursuant to a finding that the individual is a sexually dangerous person (sexual predator) or a similar finding.
 - Fleeing to avoid prosecution or custody for a felony.
 - Violating a condition of probation or parole imposed under federal or state law.
- No person shall be eligible for Supplemental Security Income for the Aged, Blind, and Disabled, subject to certain exceptions, if the person is subject to any legal status listed below:
 - An inmate at a public institution. 42 U.S.C. § 1382(e)(1).
 - Fleeing to avoid prosecution or custody for a felony. 42 U.S.C. § 1382(e)(4)(A)(i).
 - Violating a condition of probation or parole imposed under federal or state law. 42 U.S.C. § 1382(e)(4)(A)(ii).
- A person who has been convicted of any offense under federal or state law resulting in imprisonment for more than one year cannot serve as a representative payee for a beneficiary entitled to certain benefits under the Social Security Act. 42 U.S.C. § 1383(a)(2)(B)(ii)(IV).

¹² 42 U.S.C. § 402(x).

5. Family Concerns

Involuntary Termination of Parental Rights

- Pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 48.415, in determining whether grounds exist for termination of parental rights, courts may consider a variety of factors, including but not limited to convictions for the following crimes:
 - Abandonment of a child. See Wis. Stat. § 948.20.
 - Child abuse. See Wis. Stat. § 948.03.
 - Incestuous parenthood. See Wis. Stat. § 948.06.
 - Homicide or solicitation to commit homicide of parent. See Wis. Stat. §§ 940.01, 940.02, or 940.05.
 - Commission of a felony against a child.
 - Sexual assault. See Wis. Stat. § 940.225.
 - Conviction of any crime under Chapter 948 (crimes against children).
- Convictions for these offenses are also considered in other child custody and physical placement determinations.

Visitation Rights

- Visitation rights may not be granted to a person who has been convicted under Wis. Stat. §§ 940.01 (first-degree intentional homicide) or 940.05 (2nd-degree intentional homicide) of a parent of the child, if the conviction has not been reversed, set aside or vacated. See Wis. Stat. § 767.43(1m).
 - This prohibition does not apply if the court determines by clear and convincing evidence that the visitation would be in the best interests of the child.

Name Changes

- Under Wis. Stat. § 301.47(2), a sex offender may not change his or her name before he or she is released from the sex offender reporting requirements in Wis. Stat. § 301.45.

Foster Care

- A foster care license shall not be granted to an individual who has been convicted of a serious crime, including the following:
 - Homicide;
 - Felony murder;
 - Battery;
 - Sexual assault;

6. Firearms

Under both state and federal law, a person convicted of a felony is prohibited from possessing a firearm.

Restrictions under Wisconsin Law

- It is a felony offense to knowingly possess a firearm if previously convicted of a felony, convicted of a crime elsewhere that would be a felony if committed in this state, or found not guilty of a felony by reason of mental disease or defect. See Wis. Stat. § 941.29.

Restrictions under Federal Law

 - Is a fugitive from justice.
 - Is an unlawful user of, or addicted to, any controlled substance.
 - Is under a court order that restrains the person from harassing, stalking, or threatening an intimate partner.

 - It is unlawful for a person to purchase, own, or possess body armor, if previously convicted of a felony that is a crime of violence.
- For more information, see 18 U.S.C. § 931.

8. Citizenship and Immigration

Any non-citizen convicted of a crime may face either removal from the United States or classification as “inadmissible.” Consequences related to immigration and citizenship are imposed by federal law, and the details of this complex body of law are beyond the scope of this publication. The information below is provided to highlight general concerns.

Consequences of Conviction for Non-Citizens

- Inadmissibility: Certain crimes can render a person inadmissible. “Inadmissible” means that if the person leaves the United States, he or she will not be able to return.
- Deportation: Certain crimes can render a person deportable. “Deportation” means that the person can be removed from the country.
- Other possible consequences include, but are not limited to, the following:
 - Inability to obtain asylum or protected status.
 - Inability to become a citizen.
 - Inability to become a legal permanent resident.

Inadmissibility

- Most non-citizens deemed inadmissible will not be able to reenter if they leave the country. If an undocumented immigrant is determined inadmissible, he or she will be removed from the country and then barred from seeking readmission for a period of time.
- Subject to limited exceptions and waivers, grounds for inadmissibility include the following:
 - Conviction of, or admission to having committed, any crime involving moral turpitude. Note that the definition of “moral turpitude” in this context is governed by federal decisions applied to a variety of state and federal crimes.
 - Conviction of, or admission to having committed, any crime relating to a controlled substance. A limited exception applies for marijuana possession.
 - Conviction of two or more criminal offenses, the resulting aggregate sentences for which were five years or more.
 - Commission of prostitution or commercialized vice.
 - Illegal presence in the United States.
- This list is not complete. For additional information, see 8 U.S.C. § 1182.

Deportability

- Subject to limited exceptions and waivers, grounds for deportation include the following:

- Presence in the United States as an inadmissible person or in violation of law.
 - Conviction of a single crime involving moral turpitude within five years of admission for which a sentence of one year or longer may be imposed.
 - Conviction of multiple crimes involving moral turpitude, regardless of the time after admission or the sentence imposed.
 - Conviction of any aggravated felony.
 - Conviction of a violation of any controlled substance law, other than a single offense involving possession for one's own use of thirty grams or less of marijuana.
 - Conviction of a firearms offense.
 - Conviction of a crime of domestic violence, stalking, child abuse, child neglect, or child abandonment.
 - Violation of a protective order.
- This list is not complete. For additional information, see 8 U.S.C. § 1227.

Inability to Obtain Citizenship

- In order to become a naturalized citizen, a person must be of good moral character while in the United States for a minimum of five years. 8 U.S.C. § 1427(a).
- No person shall be regarded as one of good moral character if during the period for which good moral character is required, any of the following criteria applied to the person:
- Confined in a jail or prison for an aggregate of 180 days.
 - Convicted of an aggravated felony at any time.
 - Convicted of or found to have committed any of the same offenses or actions listed as being grounds for inadmissibility in 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a).
- This list is not complete. For additional information, see 8 U.S.C. § 1101(f).

A person is charged with a crime may be subject to additional penalties if he or she is a repeater offender or a persistent repeater. Wis. Stat. § 973.12 states the general provisions of sentencing for a repeater or a persistent repeater.

Previous convictions often make it more difficult to obtain pre-trial release for a subsequent charge. Furthermore, a subsequent conviction may carry a substantially greater penalty due to the offender's prior record.

11. Specific Consequences for Sexual Offenses

People convicted of sex offenses face a wide array of consequences besides prison time. Because those consequences change frequently and are often imposed by local governments, they cannot be fully documented in this publication. The following considerations are, however, likely to apply.

Residency and Zoning Restrictions

- Although Wisconsin does not have a statewide law restricting where sex offenders can live, many municipalities and counties within Wisconsin—as well as many other states—do have such laws.
- Residency restrictions range from limitations on proximity to facilities, such as schools, parks, and daycares, to effective banishment from a city or town. Some policies apply only to sexually violent predators and specifically include or exclude juveniles; others apply more broadly. Zoning restrictions in some areas limit the number of unrelated sexual offenders living together.¹³ Additionally, some loitering ordinances target individuals who have been convicted of sexual crimes. Violation of such policies can result in civil or criminal penalties.

Registration Requirements

- Wisconsin laws regarding sex offender registration requirements are set forth in Wis. Stat. § 301.45.
- Registration laws and opportunities to terminate registration obligations vary greatly among states, and many are experiencing further modification in response to the Adam Walsh Act, a piece of federal legislation enacted in 2006 and still being implemented.
 - Current Wisconsin laws on terminating registration obligations are set forth Wis. Stat. §§ 301.45(5), (6).
- Designation as a sexually violent predator triggers specific rules, including public community notification meetings every time the person moves, Internet registration, and quarterly registration for life. Wis. Stat. §§ 301.46, 973.048.
- Registration generally requires payment of fees and personal appearances at local law enforcement agencies. The person registering may be required to provide to local law enforcement his or her addresses for home, work, and school, as well as information concerning his or her vehicles, e-mail addresses, etc. Wis. Stat. § 301.35(10) (statute also requires updated information when changes occur).

¹³ <http://www.wi-doc.com/Municipal%20Ordinances%20write%20ups%2008-19-10.xls>

Travel Between States

- A person who has successfully been removed from one state’s registry may nonetheless be required to register in another state. A person whose registration obligations in another state have already been terminated may still be required to register in Wisconsin until he or she obtains a court order in Wisconsin excusing him or her from registration here. See Wis. Stat. §§ 301.45(4m), (5m).
- Some states restrict a wide array of activities by sex offenders, such as taking photographs, trick-or-treating, or entering public libraries. These restrictions may apply regardless of where the offender was convicted.
- Due to the diversity of registration obligations, anyone traveling outside of Wisconsin even for a short time should carefully investigate his or her obligations. Full registration may be required in another state depending on the length of the trip and laws of that state.

Social Stigma

- Even when a person’s registration status does not require public posting on the Wisconsin Department of Correction’s website,¹⁴ many private entities make available information concerning adult and juvenile sex offenders.
- Those convicted of sexual offenses may not be permitted on social networking sites such as Facebook.
- Nationally, there have been numerous incidences of vigilantism against those believed to have committed a sexual crime.

12. Specific Consequences for Controlled Substance Offenses

Conviction for an offense related to controlled substances may result in consequences not typically associated with other crimes. This chapter is intended to highlight those consequences and provide cross-references to the applicable portions of this publication. In addition to the consequences listed below, consequences applicable to all convictions will typically also apply to an offense related to controlled substances.

For information on consequences specific to offenses related to controlled substances, review the following chapters and sections of this publication:

Employment

Many of the professions listed in Appendix I are regulated by statutes or rules that specifically reference offenses related to controlled substances or drugs. For additional information, review the applicable profession.
